

DISCOVER SANDERSON'S DESIGN ICONS

Celebrating its classics from the archive, Sanderson's 160th anniversary collection features heritage wallpapers and fabrics in country toiles and dramatic florals, traditional coastal and mid-century designs that have been given a colour refresh to work with the palettes we use in our homes in 2021.

Need to know Accessorize meets WWF

Looking for a tiger in the bedroom? Is it time to address that elephant in the room... Terrible jokes aside, that's what the new collab between Accessorize and WWF is bringing to the home. Hand-embellished cushion covers, make-up bags and slippers are adorned with the world's most loved animals. The collection has a focus on materials such as natural silks, organic cottons and Oeko-Tex fabrics, and a contribution will be made to WWF's global work helping to protect and restore the planet.

On the hunt for affordable art?

The world of buying original art can seem daunting, but the founders of two new online galleries have created accessible platforms for everyone. Firstly, The Art Buyer scours artist's studios, art colleges and shows to discover emerging and established talent. It also has an advisory service and you can even borrow the artwork to see if it works in your home. Murus Art's augmented reality tool will help you get a sense of scale and imagine the art in your home. Its interest-free finance plan can make purchasing a more expensive piece a possibility. If cutesy paw prints don't tie in with your modern kitchen or living room, then check out new brand Settle. Its aim is to combine stylish dog beds with sustainability. The covers come in four playful prints and the plump filling is made from discarded plastic which is spun into recycled polyester fibre. Plus you can buy spare covers, helping to prolong the life of the bed too.
